SCOPETONE

Tuscany

Less than four acres of vines in two exceptional crus. One that of Scarnacuoia, famous for harbouring the first plantings of Sangiovese Grosso in the appellation's history; the other bordering the grand cru of Montosoli.

The winemaker, Attilio Pagli, a friend above all else, but also a winemaker of taste and integrity, both great rarities these days. The owner, Angela Corioni (at the helm of the estate since Federigo Abbarchi passed away), whose dedication to quality is indisputable.

The wines are the final result of all the above. Like few others they embody the qualities that made Brunello famous: intensity without vulgarity, grandeur as opposed muscle, elegance before clout and harmony that is the privilege of very fine wine. ◇
